SITUATION SUMMARY

Potential Smoke Impacts, King Fire, El Dorado County

- The Air Resource Advisor on the Kings Fire advises that he expects the fire will produce a 10 mile wide smoke front today, 9/18/14. He anticipates approximately 10,000 acres of new smoke production throughout the course of the day. Smoke information can be obtained at: <http://californiasmokeinfo.blogspot.com/>
- The Tahoe Basin has been hit hard by smoke; Auburn, Foresthill, Colfax, Truckee, Donner, and Garden Valley, have experienced significant smoke impacts.
- There will be transport winds through the weekend, producing similar smoky conditions for Western Nevada and the Tahoe Basin.
- Winds will transition to the North and East today, 9/18/14, will push smoke to the west side of the Sierra Crest
- Per Air Resources Board interpretation of the current data provided by NWS in this morning's report, south-westerly transport winds will continue throughout today, but will shift tomorrow to easterly or north easterly. Although these are high-level (not ground-level) winds, the effect of the major wind shift could be much deteriorated air quality in the Sierra and Central Valley.
- A representative from the Iron Man race advises that they have not made any decisions on how / if the smoke will impact Iron Man. They will continue to monitor the situation. A determination on race impacts / cancellation will not be made until sometime Saturday afternoon.
- There is a risk of isolated thunderstorms today across much of the region, and along the Sierra Friday into the weekend. Thunderstorm impacts to smoke transport are uncertain.
- Low pressure may move into northern California mid to late next week. This would bring another round of strong southwesterly winds impacting the fire and transporting smoke back into the Tahoe/eastern Sierra/western Nevada region.

Potential Smoke Paths from King Fire

Rough Estimates for Smoke Coverage

- Based on latest forecast wind information.
- Subtle changes in wind directions and fire activity can result in adjustments to these smoke forecasts.
- Plan on periods of reduced air quality and visibility due to smoke through tonight.
- Consult local air quality district forecasts for more specific information.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Governor Brown declares a State of Emergency in Siskiyou and El Dorado Counties

On September 17, 2014, Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. issued an emergency proclamation for El Dorado and Siskiyou counties due to the effects of the King and Boles fires, which have burned thousands of acres, destroyed homes and other structures and damaged critical infrastructure. To read the proclamation in it's entirety, please click here.

Proclamations

Plumas County declared an ongoing emergency due to unacceptable fire risk within their federal forests. They are asking the Governor to work with the Federal Government to implement stronger mitigation measures within the forests.

Lassen County is requesting the Governor of California to confirm a state of emergency and seek a Presidential concurrence regarding the existing conditions in Lassen County and the "Sierra Nevada region", providing the highest priority and recognition of extreme peril being encountered by providing a comprehensive and coordinated strategy directed by the Federal government, in cooperation with the State and local government, which emulates the former and successful "Lake Tahoe Presidential Forum" for the deteriorating natural conditions impacting the Lake Tahoe region and conducted in 1997, providing a plan, tasking agencies with specific direction, providing long-term funding, establishing a streamlined process for project delivery directed towards long-term and sustainable reduction of fire hazard and fuel loading to protect public and private resources as well as the lives and property of Lassen County citizens and the public.

Severe Weather-Riverside, San Diego County (FINAL)

Storm cells passed over the southern Region Tuesday afternoon prompting a number of severe weather advisories. The high wind and rain caused damages to a number of buildings and roadways in San Diego and Riverside County. The counties are evaluating the damages, to determine if further action is needed.

The SDO and territory rep are monitoring the situation. A proclamation has been received for the storm impacts.

09-16-14 – City of La Quinta proclaimed a local emergency due to heavy rains, flash flooding, mud and debris flow

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

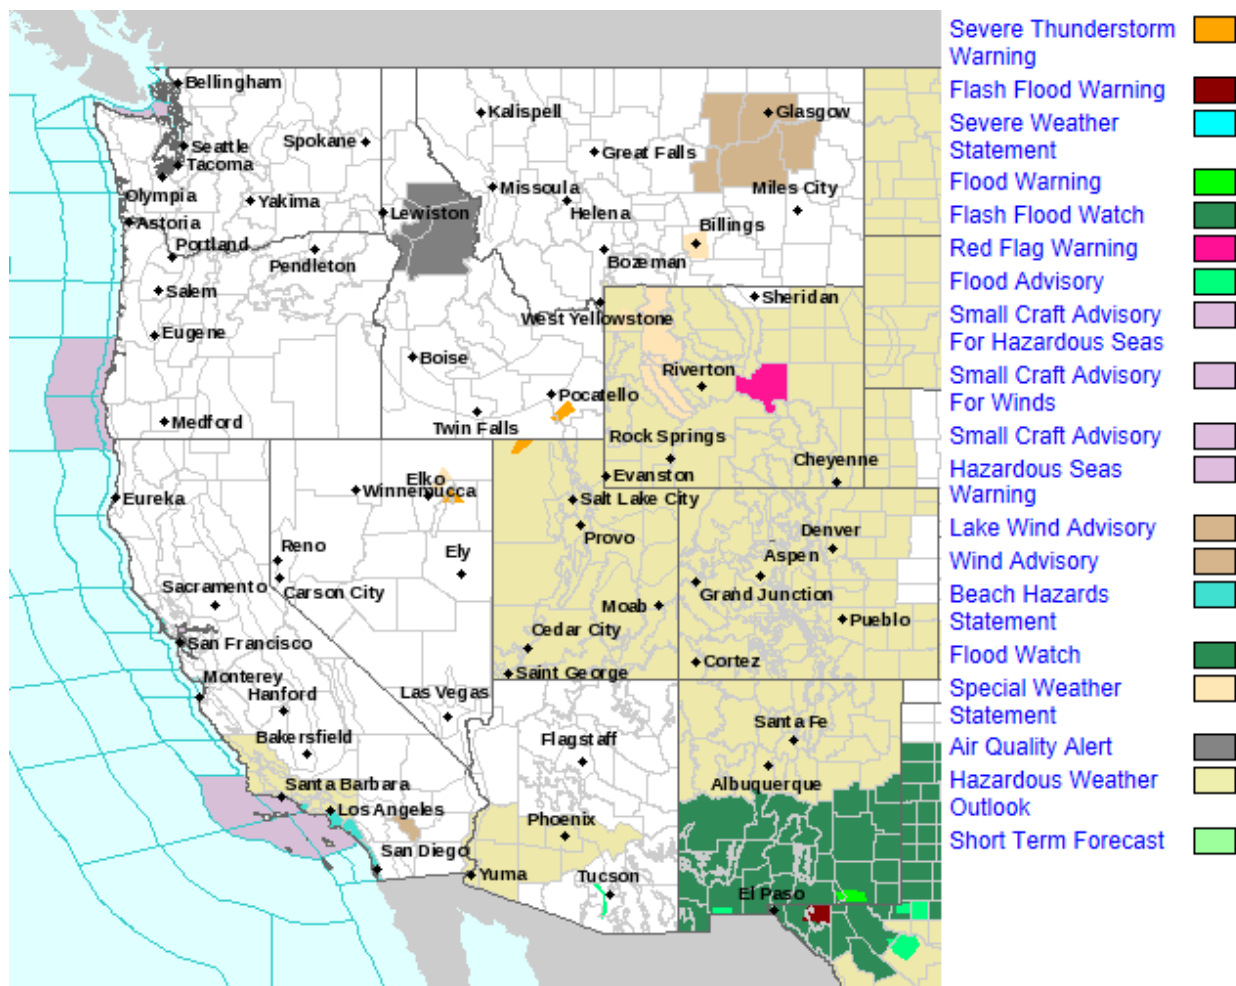

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

A late-summer low pressure system from the Pacific will move gradually across Northern California over the next 18-24 hours. It has produced .20 - 1.20 inches of rain to many areas within 10-15 miles of the coast so far, and a wide range from .01 - .45 inches farther inland to about an Oak Knoll to Clear Lake line. There were about 150 late afternoon lightning strikes in and near Humboldt County Wednesday afternoon as the system began to move onshore. Isolated wet thunderstorms could turn up almost anywhere in Northern Operations as the system moves through today. South to southwest winds will still be moderate and with stronger gusts in 3 main areas today: The Bay Area interior, the Central Sacramento Valley northward to Siskiyou Co., and from the Cascade/Sierras eastward. General winds will be reversed or reversing to post-frontal north to northeast Friday and Friday night, but that will be just a light foehn wind episode with just one day duration for moderate gusts. High pressure aloft rebuilds quickly over Oregon and most of Northern Operations Friday and Saturday, even while a pesky weak residual low lingers over Central California of Southern Operations. The high will bring sharp warming and drying, along with a reversal in prevailing wind direction to northeasterly. It only stays strong through Sunday, and the ridge will be shifting east by then too. Another weak Pacific system could clip Northwest California as early as Monday, with a stronger system bringing another rain or shower chance to at least the northwest quarter of Northern Operations about midweek next week. Confidence on that is moderate.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

A trough moving into the state will generate strong onshore flow today, resulting in much cooler weather across the district. Temperatures today will be as much as 15 degrees cooler than the past few days with most valley and foothill locations seeing readings in the 80s this afternoon. Widespread marine layer stratus along the central coast will be slow to clear, and some areas of Monterey and San Benito Counties may see some light showers during the afternoon. Enough mid-level instability will be present to lead to isolated wet thunderstorms in the Sierras each afternoon through Sunday. Easterly flow may allow for a handful of these storms to migrate from the Crest into the Sierra Foothills Friday and Saturday afternoon. Gusty afternoon winds up to 40 mph will occur in the Antelope Valley, Banning Pass, and the eastern side of the Cleveland National Forest this afternoon. One or two thunderstorms may also reach the far southern Cleveland National Forest and the low desert this weekend, but most of the subtropical moisture will remain over Mexico. The cool weather is expected to last through Saturday, and then a warming trend is expected next Monday through Wednesday. Temperatures will climb back into the 90s across the valleys by early next week. No strong offshore winds are expected during the next 7 days.

Closed Cal OES Missions

- 2014-LAW-5983, On 9/17/14, 0800 hours, the AFRCC reported a PLB activation in Yosemite National Park at coordinates 38 00.6N, 119 28.8W, which plot to the Pacific Crest Trail, S/E of Smedberg Lake. Information relayed to Yosemite National Park (YNP) Dispatch. LDO called the emergency contact who confirmed the R/O is on the Pacific Coast Trail. He received a message from the R/O on 9/16 that she was with another hiker who had to be airlifted out with altitude sickness and she was going to finish her hike, the 36 miles back to her car at Tuolumne Meadows. A YNP Ranger, who was with the R/O the previous day when her hiking partner had to be airlifted out, made it to the coordinates provided and found a note from the R/O that she connected with 3 others and would be hiking to the Matterhorn. AFRCC coordinated directly with YNP after this. Update: 9/18/14, 0700 hrs., LDO contacted AFRCC who closed their end of the mission out but the notes were not clear as to a disposition, then contacted YNP Dispatch. YNP advised their ranger followed the moving coordinates provided by AFRCC into the night and finally located the R/O. She had activated her device due to anxiety of hiking alone. Before being located she met 3 other hikers and began moving with them but did not deactivate her device. The YNP ranger stayed with her overnight at Spillard Creek and will hike out with her this morning (9/18/14). Mission Closed.
